THIS HALLOWEEN SEASON, A NEW HAUNTED HOUSE, "ZOMBIE PRECINCT," TAKES OVER THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE AT NEW YORK-NEW YORK

WHAT: New York-New York is treating its guests and fans of Halloween to an exciting new haunted house – “Zombie Precinct.” The terrifying attraction, built along the resort’s Brooklyn Bridge, has been created by Hysteria City, a popular events production company responsible for several Las Vegas-area Halloween attractions.

The legend of the “Zombie Precinct” states that, while awaiting death in the electric chair, inmate #13 murmured this curse: “Tonight, on my final night alive, all who dwell in this prison will turn to darkness and live as creatures of the night forever!” At the exact moment of the execution, a huge bolt of lightning struck the prison. Everyone in the building was transformed into zombies. Since that night, New York-New York has closed the precinct to the public. But this Halloween, the gates to the precinct will be opened once again in hope of discovering the truth behind the legend. Fright-seekers are welcome to become official investigators and find the key to breaking the curse of Inmate # 13. Just making it out of the precinct alive will be a challenge!

Admission to “Zombie Precinct” is only $20 per person with a discounted ticket price of $10 for all New York-New York hotel guests. Guests of all ages are allowed to enter but an adult must accompany children under the age of 12. Tickets are available for purchase at the Zumanity box office inside New York-New York or outside at the event entrance. For more information, call (702) 740-6969 or visit www.nyforme.com.
